Reasons for comment:	- Design
Comments:	The doors are made of the same material as the previous doors, white uPVC. The back of this building is very mismatched, different windows with different materials. Some of the current balcony doors are made of metal and not white uPVC. The building has no standard to design as there are a number of enclosed balconies, which I believe only one has planning permission for. This is a second floor flat and the doors are only just visible from the beach, and when they are open they are flat against the internal wall, whilst the sliding doors remain in situ, eating you can not see the design. A letter received from the freeholder has not specifically said they object, contrary to the letter from Lucy Dawes.
