Wayne,

We like the parapet on the existing two-storey flat roof element (which some additional detail to it). This should be carried around the entirety of the extension roof

The two hipped roofs look awkward. We suggest creating a valley within the pitch so there is a roof line linking the extension roof with the roof of the main house but viewed in a separate plane.

The windows of this extension should be centralised under this, with three panels shown on the first floor window.

It is important that the chimneys are kept. Please show all three on the plans. The valley in the pitch should be set behind the largest of the chimney.
