Comments:	I have lived in Worthing for nearly 40 years and am very familiar with many town developments, good and bad. The work proposed at the church represents a physical, aesthetic and environmental enhancement. An aging roof in need of constant repair looks poor, could cause a danger from tile slips and from those repeatedly working at height, and to the structural and internal fabric through rainwater ingress. The use of Solar not only embraces environmental advances but also reduces the medium to long term financial burden on the provision of this community asset for future generations. My only issue with this proposal is that it is not replicated enough by other building custodians. I see the widespread and visually pleasing use of intergrated panels in the construction on the old HMRC site at Durrington and belive that this application should be granted and congratulated !
