Dear Mr Barnett

Having read in The Shoreham Herald that the old Northbourne Centre, at the top of Eastern Avenue, Shoreham, will be turned into a funeral parlour, it concerned me, as a nurse of many years standing, that there is very little provision for "community care beds" within the Adur district. This has been exacerbated by the demolition of Southland Hospital and the population dramatically increasing due to replacing it with housing. Where will people go?

This is very worrying, obviously the centre will be limited in bed occupancy, but every little helps, would it be a viable situation and can you re-think the application?

Yours in anticipation
