Reasons for comment:	- Design - Loss of General Amenity - Privacy Light and Noise - Trees and Landscaping
Comments:	This structure will be an eye sore if constructed. Far too many of these have gone up already and they are unnecessary and not wanted. I understand that health effects from these are not considered in planning and I have never understood why. The impact on health should be top of your priorities not totally ignored. Also if this falls down and kills someone or if it damages property underneath who will be liable? These masts never have liability insurance for injury or death and I've heard that they fry nesting birds in their nests from radiation. That info was confirmed by someone who I was speaking to who erects these monstrosities. It doesn't do the health of the people who fix them up much good either which is probably why they are paid so much to do it. Get paid to be radiated. If they get hit by lightening do the masts just burn up or do they fall down on people underneath? Those cabinets underneath make loads of noise too I've heard. A bit like those horrid heat pumps so won't the noise cause a statutory nuisance to local residents and keep people awake at night?

I totally object to this mast and do not agree to its construction.
