Comments:	I fail to see how having a kitchen on the first floor will create excess noise or smells. Most people are done in their kitchen by 8pm, aside from the bedtime cocoa , by which time the blinds would be drawn so there would be no overlooking involved. I suspect that this is just another way of objecting to being overlooked. If you live in a town you should expect to be overlooked and they are lucky they have at least 60 feet between the West St homes and those on Ship street. Many new build houses have far less. Storm in a tea cup comes to mind.
