I refer to our telecon to-day and to a previous conversation approximateley a month ago relating to your letter of the 21.11.2017. This relates to a rear extension to the house of my next door neighbour. I live at No 44.

I understand that the extension is made on the basis of permitted rights but at your suggestion I obtained details of of the rights under the Government Portal. The item that concers me is that " the materials must be similar in appearience to the existing house"

The builders only work at weekends including Sundays. Therefore, it has only been recently that it has been possible to see that the two exterior walls with the cavity between them are being constructed with grey breeze block appearance and not with the exterior wall being of normal type bricks to match the original house, which was built c.1933. This leads me to believe that it is possible that the outer surface may be covered by render of some description which may be painted.

I have absolutely no knowledge of building construction but do worry that the work will get to the point where retrospective permission is granted in the future.

I would be grateful if the present work could be checked by a building inspector.

Than you.

Christopher R Alce.
