Reasons for comment:	- Design - Other - Privacy Light and Noise
Comments:	It would appear that the plans are being frequently amended. With regard to an art studio cabin, permission was granted for a window facing north only, not south, and this has not been subsequently obscured. The roof appears to be pitch instead of pent. Is the height of the building from the ground or the plinth on which the building is erected. Concerned regarding loss of privacy, environmental impact due to effect on wildlife. We regularly have owls, badgers, foxes and bats that frequent our garden and neighbour's. Will the cabin have heating or air conditioning units which will increase noise pollution. We would strongly object if this was to become a residential dwelling in time, with more amended plan(s), which the owner originally requested. We would also question why the cabin cannot be erected on the opposite open side of the land as the property is more than an acre, and at present is in a dark wooded area. If this was the case we do not envisage having any objection as it would not have a detrimental affect on properties adjacent to it.
