Reasons for comment: - Privacy Light and Noise

Comments: At the present time I am awoken around the hour of 06.00 (I think it is then, as I never have the energy to check the time) with shouting, banging and gerneral noise generated from assorted vehicular loading, parking, and other various logistical movements. In truth I would get a more peaceful nights sleep if I lived in the Lancing Business Park. There is generator /machine emanating a persistently annoying racket from the rear of the shop premise, which I cannot lessen in volume , even with my double glazing (new) fully shut. The Asda car park is an late night, cum early morning hobby area for local and probably not so local youth factions, whom on numerous occassons test their (or probably their parents) vehicles to near breaking point with an assortment of tyre smoking, handbrake turns, high speed braking , etc etc..... In short, bring on the extended hours,inconvenience,noise, and general inconsiderate selfishness; I am looking to move shortly.
