Comments: It is difficult to comment on suitability of this proposed sign because no specific details have been provided on this site. However assuming it is in a similar style and size to the numerous other signs which have been recently installed at this address, then I assume it too will be garish, oversized, out of keeping with the character of the building, and should not be approved. The veterinary practice was previously well sign posted, exceptionally easily to find, and to direct people to. The new signs therefore only serve to clutter the frontage of the building. Prior to the installation of the new signs, this was a good example of a development sympathetic to the conservation area. Now, regrettably, it looks like it has been vandalised by unsympathetic development,
