Same with this one?

Thanks
Hannah

Dear Hannah

Many thanks for email.

The windows to the ground floor bedrooms will be escape windows so the occupiers will not have to exit through the kitchen.

Concerning the basement I will forward a copy of this email to my client for their comments.

Regards

Paul

Dear Hannah

I have now had the opportunity to review the above application and would make the following comments.

It is likely that Building Control will have comments to make regarding the means of escape in the case of fire, but it is noted that the ground floor escape route from the bedrooms is through a high risk area, namely the kitchen and this will need to be addressed.

I can find no indication in the documents as to the proposed use of the basement – if this is to be used as communal storage, or if the landowner intends to retain its use as storage or other commercial use, then this should be indicated so that suitable conditions can be imposed to prevent fire risk or detriment to the amenity of the flat owners. The basement should not be used as living accommodation.

The development lies in an area that historical maps show as old brickfields with possible infilling with unknown material. I would therefore request that the standard contaminated land conditions be imposed.

If you require any further information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours sincerely
