Comments: Having been alerted to this application by those previously written to I would like to add a comment from the perspective of someone who already has one of the 'box-type' dormers at the end of the garden. Whilst it could be argued that precedence has already been set by the existing dormers which have been previously allowed, this is no reason for further permissions to be given to this type of development - surely a roof extension with 'velux' style windows flat to the roof would be more appropriate in a conservation area and would not lead to loss of privacy for those whose gardens face the extension?
