Hi Peter

Thanks for confirming these details. I am happy with the proposal to unload some materials from the kerbside, although where possible, this should be done within the site to reduce hazards to pedestrians. Any unavoidable unloading from the kerbside should be conducted with a banksman present to ensure pedestrian safety. All site operative and construction vehicles should conform to any existing traffic laws or Traffic Regulation Orders.

Many thanks

Nicki

Dear Nicola

Thank you for your comments on the site set-up plan. I have gone back to the applicant about parking and unloading and he has made the following comments:

The East and West sides have access into the site for most of the unloading and all the demolition removal. Some of the materials will be off loaded from the road. There is on road parking outside the site.

Is this acceptable to you?

Thanks
