Yes, good morning.

As far as I can see all plans look as discussed. Thinking about it a matt off-black might be better but am sure Nikki will discuss that when work begins.

I mentioned to Nikki that as you face the units the left sides have, what look like, vents. She was going to check with the manufacturer that covering these vents is ok. It would be a shame to scupper these plans at the last minute if it's not possible.

So if approved we are happy with this compromise.

Just for the record we have accepted that we will have to tolerate the low whirring noise from the units when we are in our east facing part of the garden.

On another matter, are you in any way involved in any decisions regarding the devastation of the area to the west of our property? Or can you point us in the right direction? Just asking as we would like our voice heard to object to the spoiling of the area. Most of the trees and 'green' has gone and we are now facing a fence and all the casings and workings of the waterworks.

Kind regards,

Richard
