Reasons for comment:	- Privacy Light and Noise
Comments:	My main worry is the window on the north side facing my house. Although it will have privacy glass, in the evening with the lights on, you can see right inside. We will be able to see right into the bathroom through our rear bedroom window as we enter the room and if we are anywhere near the the window. As our rear bedroom is in constant use in the evening by my daughter. She would feel very awkward and comfortable seeing the bathroom in use in the evening. She will be looking down into the room when she is anywhere near her window. We are also concerned about how much light might be lost in one of the ground floor rear rooms (first room coming of the main house facing south) from the proposed extension as it already does not have any direct light as the window faces south.

Kind regards
