Regarding the request of an elderly resident that the Quince tree was becoming a little too close for comfort. Personally I cannot feel that the whole tree should be sacrificed.

Surely we do not have a lovely tree as this in our garden that we can afford the whole tree to be felled, perhaps the branches near to the residence that could be cut back, leaving the rest of the tree intact.

The Convent, on whose ground we now live, would have set and loved this tree, surely it would be like the "baby and the bathwater" to fell this tree, please make this a consideration -

Yours Hopefully
