Re: AWDM/0737/36

I have just seen a post on Facebook from a company calling themselves "The Kite Bar" selling alcohol on Goring Gap. As far the local residents are aware the space has not been approved for these businesses to be operating yet. It seems that the person who owns this piece of land is determined to spoil it for the local people who pay to live here. As a council tax payer who lives in South Ferring I strongly object to the plans put forward for Goring Gap. It is a protected green space. Ferring is popular with the retired community because of the beautiful green spaces and peaceful way of life. We do not want bars and sandpits. It is not a seaside town, if bars and sandpits are wanted then why take that trade away from Worthing town centre which is just down the road.

It is such a shame that some people think they can just ruin areas for the local people.

I will attach a screenshot of the bars advert and would be interested to know if this has permission to be trading on this space?

the kite bar is at Goring Gap. ·
