Comments:	On reviewing the log cabin we would like the question to be asked as to why this cabin is being built for a "dependent relative" at the furthest point from the owners bungalow in the wooded area of the garden with the front door facing away from the bungalow, closest to the other neighbours rather than nearer the main property. We understand that this property has over an acre of land with a large open grass space next to fields and nearer the bungalow. Would this not be a better area for the cabin therefore closer to the main property for the dependent relative and away from other neighbours. We would be concerned that the front door is facing our back fence and the bedroom where we sleep which will create extra noise and disturbance. We enjoy a great variety of wildlife and have seen owls and woodpeckers in the woodland area of their garden. We also see bats in our own garden in a summer evening. We would be concerned about the light pollution and noise on the wildlife around.

Kind regards
