Dear planning team,

I find this extremely sly. Previous planning applications have been submitted and turned down but the land has been used in a way that goes against permissions, I had previously sent an email to raise my concerns around this. The individual who owns this land is quite obviously looking for a loophole to begin building on it.

So once again, I reject to the application. We do not need a sand pit next to a beach and large green area families already are capable of enjoying. We do not need toilets, we have these. Given the huge raise in mental unwellness what we need is access to more open and green spaces, this has a direct correlation with mental wellbeing. Therefore preserving this space will benefit more, including local wildlife.

Many thanks, Samantha
