Biodiversity net gain is a legal requirement for planning permission introduced on 12 February 2024. All applications are required to either provide detailed information proving there will be a biodiversity increase; or explain why the requirement does not apply to the development.

☒ No

Biodiversity net gain has been introduced as a general condition for planning permission. As set out in The Environment Act 2021: "grants of planning permission in England [are] to be subject to a condition to secure that the biodiversity gain objective is met". Therefore, in England, all planning permissions are generally subject to biodiversity gain rules, unless they are specifically exempt or out of scope.

If you have stated that the biodiversity net gain requirement does not apply to your application you must provide the reason(s) why, and may also need to supply evidence (especially where you believe the application is eligible for the 'de minimis' exemption).

Please add all the reasons why biodiversity net gain does not apply and enter a justification for each one

Reason biodiversity net gain does not apply:
Development subject to the de minimis exemption (development below the threshold)

What best describes the size of your site?:
Over 25 square metres

Please justify the reason why biodiversity net gain does not apply:

Note: Please read the help text for further information why developments may be exempt or not in scope.

"In my opinion there is no objection in principle to the proposed extension to the existing care home which would make a small contribution to meeting the need for additional care bed spaces within an established care home site in a sustainable location."

Subsequent Conservation Officers advise

"it is considered that the proposed three storey extension by way of its typology and materiality would compliment the architectural appearance of the of the host building and thus preserve the special character of the conservation area from public views. As such the proposal would accord with policy DM24, Section 16 of the NPPF, particularly para 210 and section 72 of the PLBCAA."

With respect to the Authority, is the applicant and/or agent one of the following:
