Good morning Dan,

Thank you for the quick updates - that's really great and appreciated. Apologies that it was not forwarded on from Andy/David to me previously. I have tagged my colleague Stephen into this email as I think this all looks good to go now. The only very small detail I noticed is should it say "weigh" instead of "weight"?

Other than that- great!

All the best,
Richard

Subject: Adur Civic Centre Public Art Plan

This message originated from outside your organisation.

Good afternoon Dan,

I hope you are well?

I received an email internally about signing off on the Adur Civic Centre art plan/brief and in terms of application process and timeline I think it looks good and I am excited to see how the change up in fee at interview stage impacts take up, but also had a couple of points I wanted to share with you.

The section of the document that I felt might benefit from some clarity was the actual "brief" section as well as the breakdown of monies.

On the Kingston Wharf document there was a double  on the front page explaining that the £30k was inclusive of research etc. Because there will be £3k set aside within the interview stage on the Adur Civic Centre brief, does this mean the chosen recipient will have £25k to work with for the final piece or is the £28k representative of this already? Another front page clarification of what the fee entails might help.

With regards the overall amount on the project summary page there is a double  stating that “£28,000 is the total amount the successful artist will receive”

This is clarified on The application process page ie 3 x shortlisted artist will receive £1000 to develop their ideas – therefore the winner will receive the balance of £27,000 plus the £1000 previously paid in the development stage.

During the Kingston Wharf interviews it became clear that "no ongoing maintenance" was not altogether possible, so perhaps it's a case of "no foreseen ongoing maintenance" or similar? Noted and amended Will there be access to electricity for the works? No Is there currently an idea of max height or weight? – Updated on Page 6 Page 7 makes it seem as if there is relatively little space for the installation whereas page 6 makes it look a lot bigger, again I think it would be useful for those pitching to have a slightly clearer idea of area size. The Blue circled areas on page 7 are approximately 3 metres in height. I have also updated the width of these to the correct sizes

Another thought was whether it would be worth specifying that the "installation" could be "a sculpture or sculptures" but could they also be integrated (such as the mosaics), work as street furniture, host a mural or murals etc? That one is just a thought but I thought it was worth voicing.

I didn’t want to be too prescriptive on this point but have inserted text to that effect within the brief.

Again, everything looks good in the brief but I wanted to raise the above points before progressing.
Looking forward to hearing your thoughts.

All the best,
Richard
