The requirement for disabled access to Listed Buildings can present some difficult problems to ensure that the external appearance is retained as nearly as possible to that originally intended. The committee considers that this application needs a more sympathetic approach and should be given further study. The overall effect of the railings and size of the ramp is overbearing and detracts considerably from the rear elevation. It is suggested that the ramp should descend from the right hand door curving into the garden area gradually to the lower level. A landing joining the two doors could be carried across if this is a necessary access requirement. The railings could be of a more ornamental design giving a lighter appearance than those shown.

No objection.
