Fencing
All perimeter fencing (marked A, B and C on plan) on and around the decked area is 0.9 metres high. The fencing (D and E on plan) measures the same, but topped with lattice-screen the overall height is 1.5 metres.

Decking
By far the greater part of this structure is at or near ground level. The slope of the land (clearly shown in Photos 1 and 2) gives an indication where the rise in the decking occurs, point X on plan marking the spot where the decking is at its highest above ground level, measuring not more than 0.4 metres from the base of the 4"x 2" support joists to the ground.
It is now accepted that decking is very eco-friendly, allowing rainwater to drain into the soil rather than be channelled through other more conventional hard surfaces into public drainage sustems.

Shrubbery
The depth of this predominately mature evergreen border (see Photos 2 and 3), from decking/fencing to pathway varies between 1.1 metre to 1.9 metres, the nearest point to the pathway being just to the left of the large conifer. From the photos it will be noted the shrubs and trees virtually conceal the decking/fencing from public view

I verify this plan with annotations is a true and accurate outline of the fencing, decking, etc. to be the subject of the planning application relating to 1 Steyning Close. The plan drawing of the bungalow is a copy taken from a plan prepared in October 2006.
