Subject: Re: [Adur & Worthing Councils] Planning - Website enquiry

To: Planning - <planning@adur-worthing.gov.uk>

Hi Planning,

Thank you for your quick replay to my query. I had trouble making a comment, so as suggested I have replied to your email.

My comments are that a tatty display advertising board has been up on this site for a very long time, ruining what is an area of outstanding beauty, the display sign is still there now and just as tatty. Recently there has been the addition of a lot of horse boxes, tables, wine barrels, a van, a sign saying free beer and on one occasion a sign saying burgers. It's a total eye sore and mess ruining what is supposed to be a rare area of outstanding beauty. Goodness knows what it will look like were planning permission given. Basically apart from looking shabby and not being in keeping with the beauty of the Goring Gap, the whole concept of this application seems confusing and why are all these things here already if no planning has been given?

Many thanks.

Best regards

Mark
