Comments:	My sister in law (DB) lives in the flat below and I'm objecting to this proposal on her behalf. The gentleman who has bought the flat upstairs was informed by my sister in laws husband before he bought the flat that he would not be allowed to alter the roof space. This is because there is joint responsibility in the deeds and any alterations have to be agreed by both of the shared freeholders. DB who has recently become a widow continues with the same view to object to any alterations. The proposal is not welcomed because there is a joint responsibility for insurance and repairs to the roof. Furthermore the alterations would be unsightly and require a great deal of disturbance in the construction to the works.

Kind regards
