To whom it may concern,

We have been in contact with our neighbours who have submitted planning for an extension on their house.

On reviewing the plans my husband and I are slightly concerned at how close it is to our house. Our house is built right up to the boundary with our master bedroom above the garage and two windows down that side of the house. The proposed drawings say it's a 1000mm gap at the front of the house but you can clearly see this gets smaller towards the back of the house, however it does not say how close it is on the drawings at the back.

We also have concerns if there is a building directly next to our bedroom windows that we are going to be restricted from natural light coming in, the neighbours have suggested no as their architect said as the windows are north facing. However surely with the building so close there will be the shadowing from this.

We do not want to completely opposing the extension but would just like some reassurance on the matter.

Your help is greatly appreciated.
