Reasons for comment:

Comments: As a local resident, I just wanted to say how much I support this application for the community farm at Sompting. The farm already does so much good for people - from teaching new skills to giving families access to nature - and these permanent buildings feel like a really sensible next step.

Having proper facilities instead of temporary structures will make the whole place safer, more practical and usable all year round. The new cooking, workshop and animal areas will only add to what the farm already offers, and they fit well with the Council's aims around sustainability and local food growing.

I understand the usual concerns about traffic or visual impact, but in this case, the plans seem modest and in keeping with the farm's rural setting. Permanent, well-designed buildings are likely to blend in far better than the mix of temporary structures the team currently has to rely on.

I hope the Planning Committee will recognise what a valuable community resource this is.
