2	Condition 10 (Travel Plan) – The Submitted Travel Plan Statement does not appear to follow the latest WSCC Travel Plan guidance. One notable omission is no offer of Travel Vouchers. Application to update Travel Plan Statement in accordance with latest WSCC guidance.	This development is for 30 residential apartments. WSCC currently publish guidance for Staff Travel Plans and Travel Plan advice for other developments. There is no guidance requiring Travel Vouchers for residential schemes and the developer has chosen to provide advice on local public and sustainable transport routes and local amenities together with promoting smarter travel using the WSCC produced Travelwise posters in accordance with WSCC advise. The Travel Pack proposed is also in excess of National Guidance which notes that Travel Plans are not required until the development is for greater than 80 residential units. For this development a Travel Plan was conditioned as part of the Planning Permission and a Residential Travel Pack v1.1 (copy attached) following the WSCC Travel Plan advice has been produced and submitted.

		We also note that the advice and guidance is not mandatory and given the size of this scheme the developer has chosen to focus on encouraging and promoting sustainable travel modes which remains in line with the published guidance.

Cars can block a lot more than just roads. Ask a child with asthma.

Parents use cars because it's safer. Or is it? In heavy traffic, the air quality inside your car can be worse than outside. In fact, car users regularly suffer three times more pollution than pedestrians. A worrying fact. So next journey you make by car take a deep breath, and think how much better off you'd be on foot.

If you're not going far, forget the car.

Your heart could go a lot further without the car.

You need to make a short journey. So you take the car. You only have to sit there behind the wheel. It's easy, isn't it? But it would be just as easy to walk to your destination. Walking for just 30 minutes a day can reduce risk of heart disease and stroke by half. So next short journey, put your heart into it. Walk.

If you're not going far, forget the car.

Less cars on the road and you're less likely to run into one.

Vehicle flow is the biggest contributor towards road accidents. A fact that you could change quite easily by simply leaving your car at home. Fewer cars on the road would mean fewer accidents. Which could also mean fewer insurance claims. Which could mean cheaper insurance. So next journey you have to make, use public transport, walk or cycle. You could be a lot better off for it.

If you're not going far, forget the car.
