I frequently walk along the seafront and Marine Crescent. I have no objections to the proposed development in the back garden of 94 Marine Crescent. I think the build will fit in with the other houses on St John's Ave.

Number 88 Marine Crescent has recently been redeveloped and extended into the back garden reducing the garden space and distance from its neighbour on 7 Alinora Ave, considerably but still looks good.

There is another new, very similar chalet bungalow new build to the back garden of 132 Marine Crescent, on the corner of Alinora Crescent which was obviously granted planning permission. I think the proposed development of 94 Marine Crescent is aesthetically more pleasing than this.
