| Comments:            | Originally agricultural land. It was a beautiful view from sea to top of highdown. It is now a hotch potch of vehicles, wind breaks & tables, chairs & barrels. It is not an inviting aspect of Worthing. A sandpit could become an animal toilet who would be invited to the area by the prospect of dropped/discarded food. Over night camping & possible party atmosphere would detract from peaceful strolls along the greensward & promenade. An unnecessary money making venture not required as children & adults already have sand & sea. Danger to people, especially children crossing the road which is often congested with parked vehicles. |
