Dear Sir

re: Amended plans for AWDM/0444/17

I write again on behalf and with the permission of my elderly aunt of 7 Collingwood Court to raise once more her serious concerns about the planning application for extensive extension work to the house adjoining her property. Although the plans are now altered slightly there remains the extension to the bathroom which the applicants propose to build over the porch. This is the only part of the plans to which she has objections.

We have concerns that the plans show evidence that this extension has no overhang to take away rain water which from the plans would seem to flow onto her porch. This would of course be unacceptable. There is no change to the plans which continue to imply that the wall on which the bathroom extension would be built is a proper party wall: this is not the case. While this may not be a rationale for refusing these plans they remain inaccurate and deceptive. Additionally despite the new recessed area on the side extension should this bathroom extension be built it will alter the whole of the façade of the two houses and be out of balance with the whole row from 1-8.

This application has caused an elderly woman great distress and I am concerned for her health. She will however be writing on her own behalf when she receives her letter which to date has not been delivered.

Yours faithfully

Francesca Turner
