Grounds for Application

Information about the existing use(s)

Please explain why you consider the existing or last use of the land is lawful, or why you consider that any existing buildings, which it is proposed to alter or extend are lawful

The existing single-storey outbuilding is considered lawful as it falls within the scope of permitted development rights set out in Schedule 2, Part 1, Class E of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) (England) Order 2015 (as amended). Class E permits the provision of buildings or enclosures within the curtilage of a dwellinghouse for purposes incidental to the enjoyment of the dwellinghouse. The swimming pool building is incidental to the residential use of the property, is located within the established curtilage, and does not constitute a separate planning unit. Provided the structure complies with the relevant limitations under Class E (including height, siting, and coverage restrictions), its construction and use are lawful permitted development.

Furthermore, as the outbuilding will be erected in accordance with the limitations and conditions of Schedule 2, Part 1, Class E, it benefits from deemed planning permission under the GPDO and is therefore lawful. The proposed alterations or extensions relate to a building that is incidental to the enjoyment of the dwellinghouse and forms part of the residential planning unit. Accordingly, the existing use and structure are considered lawful under permitted development provisions.
